

New Inscriptions from the Museum of Eskişehir

Büşra KARABULUT*

In this contribution eleven Greek inscriptions are presented, which have not previously been published. Nine of these inscriptions are from the Museum of Eskişehir and two of them are in a private collection and registered with the museum. All of these are funerary inscriptions, with the exception of the fragmentary piece (no. 11).

The first two inscriptions (nos. 1 and 2) were found in different villages of Odunpazarı in Eskişehir. These inscriptions probably belonged to the territory of Dorylaion, such as no. 4 found in Şarhöyük.<sup>1</sup> The village of Rahmiye in Beylikova, where no. 3 was recorded, could probably be within the territory of Choria Considiana.<sup>2</sup> No. 5, found in Alpu/Osmaniye Mahallesi could possibly belong to Akkilaeion.<sup>3</sup> The sarcophagus no. 9 was found in Mutallip Köyü, Emirler Mahallesi, which was in the territory of Dorylaion.<sup>4</sup> The find-spots of inscriptions nos. 6, 7 and 8 are unknown. The find-spots of nos. 10 and 11, in a private collection and registered with the museum, are also unknown.

No. 1. Funerary stele of Karikos

Marble stele. Found in Odunpazarı İlçesi, Kireçköy Mahallesi, now kept in the garden of the museum. Inv. no.: -. Dimension: H.: 84 cm; W.: 61.5 cm (upper); 51.5-53 cm (middle); D.: 8 cm; Lh.: 2.3-3 cm.

Marble stele with triangular pediment. The parts decorated with palmette motifs on the left and right corner acroteria are preserved. The top of the right acroterion is broken. In the centre of the pediment is a relief of a large bunch of grapes. The lower part of the stele is broken. On both sides

The research and investigation of the Greek and Latin inscriptions at the Museum of Eskişehir are conducted by Prof. Dr. N. Eda Akyürek Şahin. I am grateful for her encouragement and for giving permission for the publication of these inscriptions. I thank Prof. Dr. Altay Coşkun for his remarks on the paper. For publications of inscriptions from the Museum of Eskişehir, see: Doğan 2017; Akyürek Şahin – Uzunoğlu 2018 and Akyürek Şahin – Uzunoğlu 2019. All the photos included in this article were provided by Prof. Dr. N. Eda Akyürek Şahin.

<sup>4</sup> A border inscription from Mutallip shows that Nikaia and Dorylaion had a common border there, see MAMA V 60. But P. Frei (1983, 54) thinks that Bozdağ might have been a natural border, although Dorylaion's northern border cannot be determined precisely.

of the stele, columns in Corinthian style have been carved. A garland is attached to the top parts of columns and is depicted between the columns. The following Greek inscription is carved in the section bounded by the garland.

ἐτίμησαν Καρι-

2 κὸν νιὸν Καρ-

ικὸς κὲ Χελι-

4 δῶν μνήμ-

Karikos and Chelidon honoured (their) son Karikos, in memory.

L. 1: ἐτίμησαν. The use of τιμάω, often found in honorific inscriptions, is customary in Phrygia in a funerary context.<sup>5</sup> It emphasizes that the deceased is honoured with the grave monument.<sup>6</sup>

Date: Probably 2nd-3rd century AD (concluding the stele and the letters forms).

No. 2. Funerary stele of Apphia

Marble stele. Found in Odunpazarı İlçesi, Şarkiye Mahallesi, now kept in the garden of the museum. Inv. no.: -. Dimension: H.: 186 cm; W.: 50 cm (upper); 45 cm (middle); 49 cm (bottom); D.: 15 cm (middle); 18 cm (bottom); 15 cm (tenon); Lh.: 2.5 cm.

The thin and long marble stele has a high base and a triangular pediment. All of the acroteria are damaged and broken. They are decorated with ivy leaves.

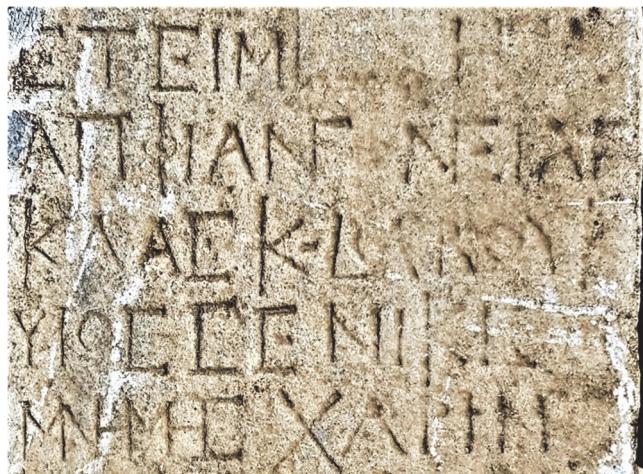

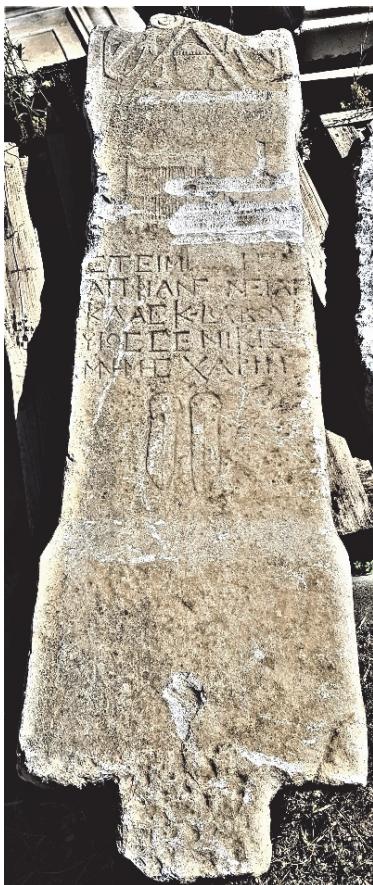

In the centre of the triangular pediment, a basket (kalathos) is depicted together with a scent bottle on either side. These items indicate that this stele was designed for a woman. These types of decoration appear on numerous stelai in Phrygia (see also below no. 5). There is a wide space probably decorated with a string musical instrument (e.g. lyre or kithara?<sup>7</sup>) between the inscription and pediment. The Greek inscription of five lines is carved in the middle of the stele. There is a wide space between the inscription and the pediment. Beneath the inscription two sandals are carved. The foot of the stele has a large tenon.

2 Ἀπφίαν γ[ο]νεῖς Ασ·
κλᾶς κὲ Βαβου κὲ
4 νιὸς Σενικίω[ν] μνήμης χάριν.

Her parents Asklas and Babou and her son Senikion honoured Apphia, in memory.

L. 1: ἐτείμησα⟨ν⟩: Since the parents and her son built the stele for Apphia, a final ny is required. It is not carved on the stele either because the stonemason forgot to inscribe it – and perhaps it was later added in paint – or it was one of the usual mistakes that can be seen in the line 2 of the inscription.<sup>8</sup>

L. 2: Apphia, a local female name, is a Lallname.<sup>9</sup>

γονεῖς: A similar omission or mistake like that in l. 1.

L. 3: Babou, a local female name, is a Lallname.<sup>10</sup>

989 Taf. 149; no. 1104 Taf. 166; Pfuhl – Möbius 1979, no. 1586 Taf. 231; no. 1647 Taf. 241; no. 1967 Taf. 282; no. 2009 Taf. 291; no. 2038 Taf. 296; no. 2315 Taf. 326; no. 2319 Taf. 327; Schmidt 1991, 138, argues that the presence of kithara on the funerary stelai is associated with the musical activity of the deceased.

L. 4: Σενικίων. A different form of this name, Σενεκίων<sup>11</sup>, is known from Asia Minor. The use of iota instead of epsilon is probably a mistake.

Date: Probably 2nd-3rd century AD (concluding from the stele and the letters employed).

No. 3. Funerary stone of Asklepios

Marble block. Found in Beylikova, Rahmiye Mahallesi, now kept in the garden of the museum. Inv. no.: - ; Dimension: H.: 57 cm; W.: 37-39 cm; D.: 19 cm; Lh.: 3-4 cm.

The upper and lower parts of the block are broken. The inscription on the remaining parts is legible, but the last lines of the inscription have not survived. The block is damaged in several places and has no decoration or motif.

L. 1: Nana<sup>12</sup> appearing in Acc. should be Nom. in conformity with μήτηρ.

L. 3: Lala<sup>13</sup> appearing in Acc. should be Nom. in conformity with θυγάτηρ.

Date: Probably 2nd-3rd century AD (concluding from the stele and the letters employed).

No. 4. Funerary stele of Olympias

Marble stele. Found in Şarhöyük (Dorylaion), now kept in the garden of the museum. Inv. no.: - . Dimension: H.: 91 cm; W.: 37.5 cm (upper); 36.5 cm (middle); 39 cm (bottom); D.: 8-15 cm; Lh.: 1-3 cm.

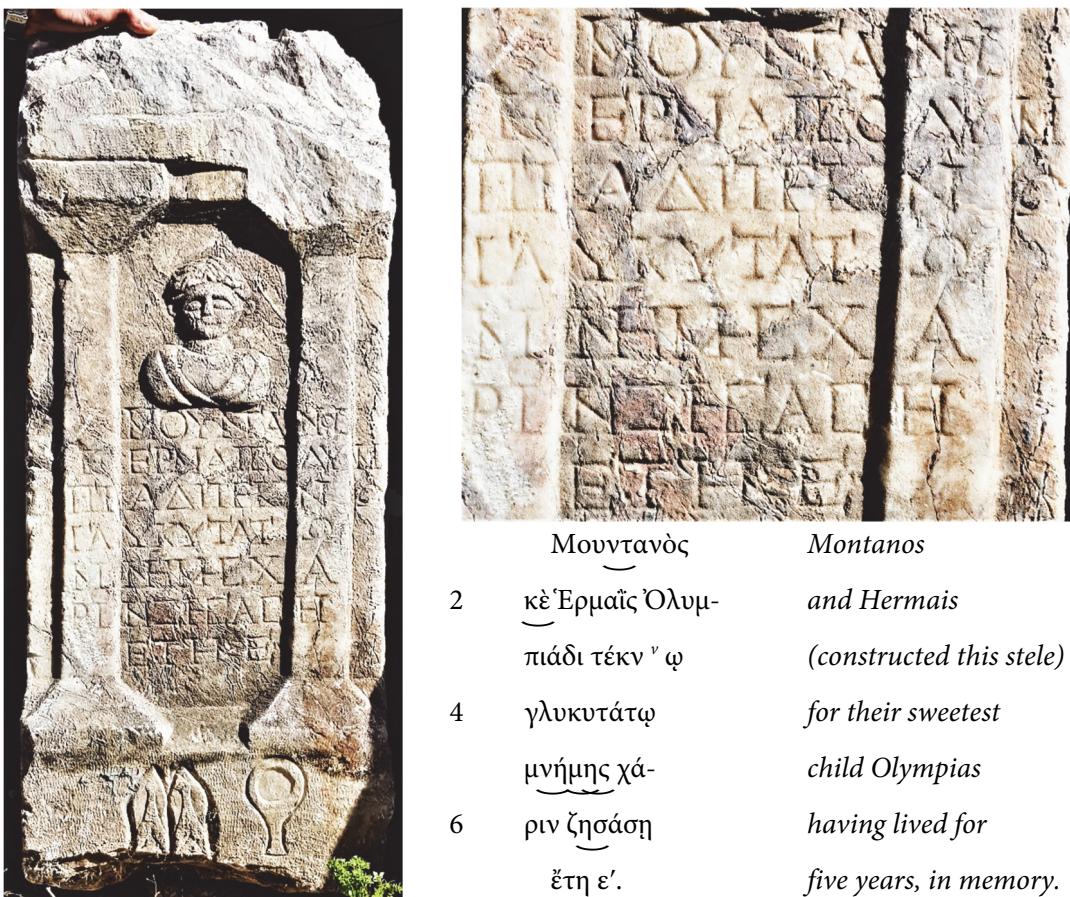

The stele is broken at the top. There are depictions of columns with simple capitals on either side of the stele. The bust of the deceased girl is carved between these columns. Her dress, braided hair and face details are elaborately worked. An inscription is carved beneath the bust and most of the letters at the beginnings and ends of the lines overflow onto the columns. Two sandals and a hand mirror are depicted on the bottom of the stele. The lower part slightly is broken.

L. 1: Μουντανός = Montanós.<sup>14</sup> The names Mo(u)ntanos and Olympias, his daughter, are theophoric names, derived from oronyms.<sup>15</sup>

L. 2: Ἐρμαῖς is not a very common female name in Phrygia.<sup>16</sup> This name could be as a female variation of the frequent derivatives of the divine name Hermas/Hermes.

Date: Probably 2nd-3rd century AD (concluding from the stele and the letters employed).

Funerary inscriptions only rarely specify the age of the deceased in Phrygia (cf. no. 9 below), while this practice is more common in Bithynia and Lydia.

No. 5. Funerary stele of Stratonis and Atti -

Marble stele. Found in Alpu, Osmaniye Mahallesi, now kept in the garden of the museum. Inv. no.:-. Dimension: H.: 101 cm; W.: 43 cm (upper); 45 cm (middle); D.: 12 cm; Lh.: 3-3.5 cm.

The corner acroteria of the stele with triangular pediment are broken. The top acroteria is preserved but greatly damaged and eroded, the motif carved on it was probably a palmette. In the centre of the pediment, a double-sided comb, a hand mirror and a scent bottle have been carved. The Corinthian style columns on either side are damaged in several places. A distaff, a spindle and a basket (kalathos) are depicted between these columns. All these items appearing on numerous stelai in Phrygia indicate that this stele was designed for a woman (see also above no. 2). The Greek inscription is carved beneath these reliefs. The upsilon in the first line overflowed onto the right column. The stele is diagonally broken from the left and the bottom is lost and, in consequence, the lower left and bottom parts of the inscription are missing.

	[-----] ΑΝ-	for (his) daughter

L. 2-3: Στρατωνίς.<sup>17</sup> The name does not occur otherwise in Phrygia.

L. 4-5: Ἄττι[κίλλα?].<sup>18</sup> The mother Stratonis and the daughter Atti- - might well have died at the same time.

Date: Probably 2nd-3rd century AD (concluding from the stele and the letters forms).

No. 6. Fragmentary gravestone

White marble block. Find-spot: unknown, now kept in the garden of the museum. Inv. No.: -. Dimension: H.: 122 cm; W.: 59 cm; D.: 9.5 cm; Lh.: 3 cm.

<sup>17</sup> For the name Stratonis see LGPN VC, 399 s.v. Also see MAMA IV, 177; SEG 40, 1288.

The left upper part of block stone is broken. No motif or decoration. The left and right sides of the front were erased, probably in the course of secondary use in a later period. Consequently, it is understood both from the physical condition and from the content of the inscription, there would have been letters in the removed sections of both sides.

....., son/daughter of Philippos constructed (this stone) for ..... of Nearchos, ..... Sosigenes with children ? Polyainos and ....., in memory.

L. 1-2: σὺν τ[οῖς τέκν]οις ? or συντ[ρόφ]οις ?

L. 3: Alpha can probably be the end of a female name in dat.

L. 4: Σωσιγένης. This is the first attestation of this name in the territory of Dorylaion.<sup>19</sup> Σωσιγένη = Σωσιγένει.

Date: Probably 2nd century AD (concluding from the sigma and omega).

No. 7. Funerary altar

Marble funerary altar. Find-spot: unknown, now kept in the garden of the museum. Inv. no.: -. Dimension: H.: 125 cm; W.: 59 cm (upper); 53 cm (middle); 56 cm (bottom); D.: 24 cm (upper); 30 cm (middle); 26 cm (bottom); Lh.: 3 cm.

The surface of the altar is worn and has plenty of small scratches. Its upper and bottom sections are partly broken. The inscription is weathered. There is an ivy leaf motif at the end of the inscription. The spelling of inscription seems unusual. There are many circular carved marks on and around the letters. These marks seem to have been made by the stonemason and the letters were intended to be marked by these strokes.

L. 2: δημόσιος: A public slave or state-servant.<sup>20</sup> This title of an official probably indicates the archivist of the city, working mainly on scriptures<sup>21</sup>, as this was carried out by a public slave or freemen.<sup>22</sup> Elpidephoros has no patronymic, so it seems reasonable to think that he was a public slave rather than a freeman.<sup>23</sup>

L. 3 and 6: Φιλήτη. This is the first attestation of this name within the territory of Dorylaion.<sup>24</sup>

L. 4: After the word ἔαυτοῖς, a single letter ‘Z’ appears. It is clear this letter is not connected with the word κέ after it. It can be thought that this single letter ‘Z’ was perhaps used as an abbreviation of the word ζῶντες. But such an abbreviation seems neither usual nor common.<sup>25</sup>

L. 8: Ροδογούνη. This is an oriental female name.<sup>26</sup> It does not appear in Asia Minor. The name is known from two inscriptions from Nemrut Dağı in Commagene<sup>27</sup> and from Catania in Sicily.<sup>28</sup> The names mentioned in the first two inscriptions belong to Queen Rhodogoune, daughter of Artaxerxes.<sup>29</sup> Also the different form of this name, as Αὐρηλία Ροδογύνη is attested in Beroia of Macedonia.<sup>30</sup>

Date: After 212 AD (Constitutio Antoniniana).

No. 8. Grave Stone of Hierokles

Marble stele. Find-spot: unknown, now kept in the museum depot. Inv. no.: -. Dimension: H.: 33 cm; W.: 40 cm; D.: 12.5 cm; Lh.: 2.5 cm.

The upper, bottom and right sides of the stele are broken. Only the left side of the stele is preserved. No motif or decoration is on it. The inscription is broken off at the top and on the right side.

son of Apollonios, in memory.*

L. 1: Since the deceased is in the Acc. form, there is almost no doubt that the beginning was ἐτείμησαν (see also above no. 1-3).

<sup>25</sup> For its abbreviations in the inscriptions see Gardner 1885, 357 no. 121; MAMA VII 102; IG II<sup>2</sup> 13315; IMT Kyz Kapu Dağ, 1419 (= CIL III, 373; IK 18, 433). See also Avi-Yonah 1940, 67.

L. 3: OYANT...: This is a beginning of a personal name such as Ονανγδαμοης<sup>31</sup> or Ονανγδιβασ-σιν<sup>32</sup> known from the inscriptions from Lycaonia. But it cannot be restored securely due to the gap of unknown length at the end of the line and it is further uncertain whether the letters NA in the next line belong to this name.

L. 4: NA: This should be ending of a personal name in nom., gen. or dat. form.

Date: Probably 2nd-3rd century AD (concluding from the letters).

No. 9. Sarcophagus of Hermolaos

Marble sarcophagus. Found in Mutallip Köyü, Emirler Mahallesi, now kept in the garden of the museum. Inv. no.: -. Dimension: Len.: 264 cm; H.: 124 cm; W.: 123 cm; D.: 22 cm; Lh.: -.

The lid and the sarcophagus do not belong each other. A smaller lid was placed on the sarcophagus by the museum staff. The lid is shaped in the form of a roof and there are small acroteria at its corners. Both roof pediments carry a motif resembling a small shield.

The sarcophagus is elaborately carved and is cracked all around in the middle. The entire surface is thinned by a few centimetres, and thus a base is formed at the bottom. The front and right faces of the sarcophagus are decorated and the other faces are flattened. On the front face, there is an inscription of five lines carved carefully in a large tabula ansata. On the right face are carved three-figures in high relief. There are a man standing in the middle and two figures sitting on the chairs to right and left. All the figures are dressed in chiton and chimation on it. The figure sitting on the left is carved slightly taller in height than that on the right, and holds a book in his left hand. This male figure, whose details are not very clear, probably depicts the father Hermolaos. The figure sitting on the other chair is a woman, possibly representing the mother Markiane. The young male figure standing in the middle depicts the deceased young Hermolaos. He probably holds a book in his right hand. The object in his other hand cannot be identified. The faces and details of the figures are damaged and worn.

No. 10. Funerary stele of Phil...

Marble stele. Find-spot: unknown, now kept in the collection of İrfan Kurumehmetoğlu and registered with the museum. Inv. no.: -. Dimension: Len.: 22 cm; W.: 20 cm; D.: 3 cm.

All sides of the stele are broken.

Date: 4th-6th century AD
